

JASON REED

Although born, raised, and currently living in the Bay Area, Jason Reed spent time in southern California, where he attended U.C. Riverside to play baseball and earn a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Jason has spent most of his career working in procurement, including positions with the California Water Service, Moscone Center (SF). He is currently serving as the Purchasing Coordinator for the City of San Mateo, a role he has filled for the last four years. In addition to his work in procurement, Jason also co-founded a software startup company, keeping him incredibly busy and involved with a large number of projects. Jason enjoys working on the cutting edge of the procurement field, and he plans to continue supporting and sharing knowledge about the industry in the years to come.
