

David Rabiner

David Rabiner has been a speaker, trainer, facilitator, and executive coach for over 25 years. His body of work includes 2,200 presentations in 13 countries and 46 U.S. states. For most of his life, David has been a student of leadership, how people influence each other, and how individuals and teams perform at their best. Before beginning his speaking career, David spent ten years working in government administration, so he understands the distinctive leadership challenges that public sector managers face. David also has been a popular speaker for procurement professionals, including multiple presentations in the past here at Forum. He has also traveled around the country to speak for many NIGP chapters.