

Jonathan White

For the last ten years, Jonathan White has been a Business Development Director with Spikes Cavell. He has spent that time working with finance and procurement professionals in organizations to help them get a firmer grip on how much is spent, on what, and with who in order to find savings opportunities, enable strategic sourcing initiatives, and to transform their procurement functions. He has frequently been a speaker at both private and public-sector conferences on the topics of spend analytics, measuring savings, and spend transparency. Jonathan earned two bachelor's degrees, one in international business and the other in political science, from Massey University in New Zealand.