

Sean Carroll

In August 2016, Sean Carroll was appointed as the Chief Procurement Officer for New York's Office of General Services. Mr. Carroll manages more than 1,500 contracts with annual spend exceeding $22 Billion and oversees New York Procurement Services Unit. Mr. Carroll is responsible for statewide contracts for commodities, services, and information technology for state agencies, state campuses, and other authorized users. His prior public-sector experience includes the Director of Onondaga County Division of Purchase since December 2010, after serving as the Assistant Director and architect of their S.M.A.R.T. (Strategic, Modernized, Accessible, Responsive, and Technology Driven) purchasing methodology and as Director of Investigations for the New York State Consumer Protection Board. In the private sector, Sean owned and managed a logistics and consulting firm for ten years in between his government service.