

Ida Quamina
Managing Director
Huron Consulting Group

Ida has over 30 years of higher education industry experience, with a focus on helping higher education institutions and academic health centers transform through technology. She is responsible for overseeing enterprise performance management technology solutions across Huron's education and healthcare clients.

Ida brings more than three decades of industry experience to Huron, including 15 years of working with colleges, universities, and academic health centers to transform their operations with technology. She has deep expertise working with leaders to select and implement budgeting, cost analysis, business intelligence and student information systems.

Throughout her career, Ida has collaborated with education institutions and healthcare organizations to:

- Lead road map sessions, conduct business process analysis, and provide recommendations on business process redesign to support the effective use of technology.
- Assist in the selection of technology applications to help streamline business process, improve decision making and enhance resource alignment.
- Oversee the implementation of planning and budgeting technologies to support a variety of budget and planning models.

Ida is a frequent speaker at both technology and industry conferences and events.
