About

A word from the organising committee

We are delighted to invite your organisation to partner with us as a sponsor of Supramol27, the annual conference of the RACI Supramolecular Chemistry Division.

Since its inception in 2015, Supramol has grown from a student-led gathering into Australia's premier meeting for supramolecular chemistry. The conference brings together researchers, academics, industry professionals and students working across chemistry, materials science, biology, nanoscience and related fields, creating a vibrant forum for collaboration, innovation and knowledge exchange.

Following the success of Supramol26 at Monash University, we are excited to host Supramol27 in Brisbane in February 2027. We anticipate welcoming more than 100 delegates from across Australia and overseas, including undergraduate and postgraduate students, early-career researchers, established academics and industry representatives.

Supramol27 will showcase the latest advances in supramolecular chemistry while fostering new collaborations, strengthening connections between academia and industry, and supporting the next generation of scientific leaders. A strong emphasis will be placed on providing students and early-career researchers with opportunities to present their work, expand their professional networks and engage with leaders in the field.

By sponsoring Supramol27, your organisation will gain direct exposure to a highly engaged scientific audience, demonstrate its commitment to research and innovation, and support the continued growth of Australia's supramolecular chemistry community. Sponsorship provides a valuable opportunity to build brand visibility, engage with emerging talent and connect with researchers working at the forefront of discovery and application.

We invite you to explore the sponsorship opportunities outlined in this prospectus and would be pleased to discuss a tailored package that aligns with your organisation's objectives.
Thank you for considering support of Supramol27. Your contribution will help us deliver an outstanding conference experience and create meaningful opportunities for students, researchers and industry participants alike.

Yours sincerely,
The Supramol27 Organising Committee
