Founded in 1917, the Royal Australian Chemical Institute (RACI) pairs a rich legacy of scientific excellence with a commitment to advancing the chemical sciences for the betterment of Australia and beyond. Our institute is a vibrant community of passionate individuals from education, academia, industry, and government, united by a common purpose: to foster the understanding and application of chemistry for the benefit of society. At the heart of what we do is the pursuit of knowledge, innovation, and collaboration. Please join us on this journey, where knowledge meets innovation, and together, we can shape the future of chemistry. raci.org.au
