

Insuring Black Swans

Understanding Non-physical Damage Business Interruption Claims

Speakers: David Langman, Senior Vice President, Swiss Re
Scott Carpinteri, Senior Vice President, Swiss Re

In today's global economy, companies rely less on tangible properties for their continued operations and become more dependent on complex, world-wide supply chains. In addition, regulatory, reputational, cyber and other fortuitous risks threaten the long-term outlook of businesses. Unfortunately, traditional property damage and business interruption (PD/BI) policies do not necessarily protect corporations from all of the risks that may lead to a business interruption loss. In this session, we'll discuss the various approaches to insured perils, defining triggers, structuring and indemnity for non-physical damage business interruption (NDBI) insurance. While we obviously cannot provide you with all the answers, we hope to stimulate your imagination about unique approaches to business interruption insurance that drive further discussions and solutions.
