My name is Matthew Hagedorn, I am a third year Aerospace Engineering student at UCSD, who is very interested in technology and space.

COVID19 provides a lot of challenges as educational and employment for universities and employers as they were forced to switch to remote methods in a very short time frame. Professors were forced to create a new online final within a week's notice. As a result, many of the methods we are currently using to try and stay productive just are not as effective as they have been in the past. We do not always think about all the cues that we pick up from being in person with someone, and while online video can somewhat simulate that there is a difference. That being said, this crisis shows that there is definitely the possibility for many activities to be done more remotely that were previously done in person.
