WHO Librarian To Speak Sunday

Appearing as a panel member at Immaculate Heart College this Sunday, Sherry Taylor, WHO librarian, will explain the functions of special librarianship in business and industry to high school and college students, using the two WHO libraries as illustration.

Sponsored by the Graduate Department of Library Science at the college, the "Meet The Librarians" program is given in connection with National Library Week (see Books) for interested students.