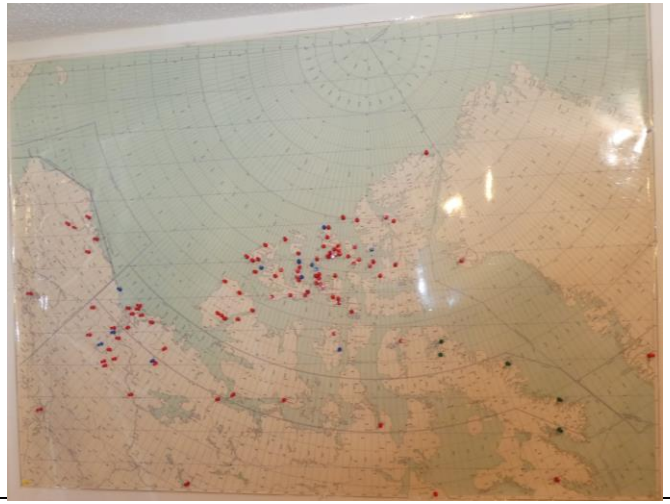
Hercules Canada Reunion – June 7-9, 2019

Summary and photos from Stuart Russell

The 2019 Reunion was a great success, and everyone had fun reliving the adventures from across the Arctic and around the globe. There was a total of 135 attendees. The oldest gent was Mel Neidig, 91 year old pilot who still flies regularly. Good food, cold beer, right atmosphere, and plenty of time to catch up worked wonders for all!

Stuart Russell and Knut Ohm – receiving a little PWA Hercules model with Arctic drilling rigs in the background, recognition for their many years of organizing reunions.

We borrow the big PWA Herc model from the Alberta Aviation Museum for each reunion. It rides in a pickup with a couple of "wing men" to keep it upright for the three blocks up the street to and from the reunion.



The High Arctic Map in Stu's basement – showing the runways he flew into marked in red for land and blue for ice. They are only a fraction of the total Arctic runways of which all but the community airports are now gone.
