CORAL SPRINGS, Florida (November 9, 2022) – The Women's Golf Coaches Association will host the first-ever Professional Development for Career Advancement Workshop at the upcoming WGCA Member Convention on Sunday morning, Dec. 4 in Las Vegas, Nevada. The workshop will take place from 8:30 am to 12:30 pm local time.

This program will be offered complementary to assistant coaches attending the convention as well as Division II, III, NAIA, and NJCAA Head Coaches. We will offer a deep dive to prepare coaches for their next job. The program will include a group-wide presentation, round-table discussion, one-on-one activities, and real-time polling of the attendees on career-related topics. In addition, coaches will have the opportunity to receive edits and feedback on their resumes in a customized one-on-one session.

The workshop will be hosted by Matthew Banker, a 20+ year veteran of the college athletics industry. Matt's experience includes serving as senior administrator at a major Division I athletics program, a Division I athletics conference, the NCAA national office and the NCAA Eligibility Center. Matt's experience in college sports includes a high-level understanding of the recruiting and athletics scholarship process, NCAA eligibility and compliance, the NIL marketplace, college athletics' career services, and university and organizational operations and policy development.
